GRACE GAVER RENOUNCES INDIAN "DOCTOR" IN ZANESVILLE JAIL; DENIES ANY INTIMATE RELATIONS

DECLARES MOTHER'S DEATH DUE TO NERVOUS STRAIN CAUSED BY OVER-WORK

Says Her Mother Worked Herself to Death Making Indian Costume for Accused Man

SHE OPPOSED DOCTOR'S WOOING IN AURORA

Pleaded With Mother to Spurn Kisses of Rheamont When He Called to Give Her "Treatments" While Ill—Alleged That the Indian Abused Girl Wife Until She Left Him—Chemist Comes to Interview Attending Physician.

MEDICINE MAN'S MOTTO.

Just at the side of Prof Rheamont's desk in his office hangs a motto card. It reads: "There are microbes in kisses. But I like the little devils."

That Jessie Fremont Gaver died from heart disease superinduced by nervousness and too close application to work on a beaded suit for Dr. J. H. Rheamont is the assertion made Friday evening in Zanesville by Grace Gladys Gaver who is in the custody of Sheriff John J. Frick of Muskingum county.

Following the interview which Rheamont gave to Advocate men in Zanesville at the county jail on Thursday evening he has assumed a non-committal attitude and refuses to talk, but the girl, who on Thursday night, refused to give out any very definite information, has begun bit by bit, to tell some of the incidents connected with her life and that of her mother while they were with the Indian.

"Mother worked on that suit for four months. It is an elaborate piece of Indian bead work and it contains millions and millions of small beads and thousands of large ones. The beads were bought by the peck. She wore herself out working so hard to get it done and while completing it became very nervous and irritable," said Grace.

The suit is an elaborate affair. The waistcoat of red velvet is one of the designs in beads. The coat, fashioned after the George Washington period, is also elaborately decorated in beads. The trousers are striped with beads. The most elaborate piece of the decorated suit is a solid network of beads about 3 inches wide. It is worn around the neck and extends to the waist. It meets at the waist line and is held together by a triangle of network in which his initials are worked in various colors.

In the medicine man's office many curious and relics of old Indian days were found. The room is decorated with pictures of Indian beads and necklaces of beads, porcupine, snakes and arrow heads. A large supply of medicines was on hand. He manufactured a lot of his remedies on the day of his arrest.

Grace Renounces Doctor. "If he's the kind of a man they say he is I don't want anything more to do with him," said the girl last night. She stated that she did not want him to be her guardian if the things told her are true.

It developed during the day that most of the furniture used in fitting up the home and office in Zanesville was the property of the girl through the mother's will. It developed that the piano, rugs, dining room, kitchen and parlor furniture are her property while only the beds, an office desk and some chairs are the possessions of the doctor.

Doctor Kind to Her. Still maintaining that she was never mistreated in the Indian's company, the girl clings to her story. She insisted Friday evening ing that Rheamont had always taken an interest in her but had never attempted liberties. She is still in the custody of Sheriff Frick, but is not locked in the county jail. She is allowed the free use of the sheriff's residence. However, she is not permitted to leave the house. She appeared cheerful Friday evening, as cheerful as one could possibly be suffering with a toothache. One tooth had been aching furiously all day and ordinary remedies would not relieve.

"If I was rich I would certainly find a home for orphan dogs and cats. I like them. I've got a little dog named 'Rags.' He's white when he's clean, but he'll all dirty, now."

INJUNCTION SERVED AGAINST HEAD CAMP OF MODERN WOODMEN

---CANNOT COLLECT THE NEW RATE

Twelve hundred of the Modern Woodmen of America in Newark and Licking county, besides thousands all over the country, are interested in a decision of the circuit court of Springfield, Ill., in which the head camp of this order is enjoined against increasing the rates.

N. C. Sherburne of the local lodge who holds the office of state deputy in the Ohio camp, has gone to Illinois, having been called there on business connected with the controversy.

According to the statement of a local Woodman, the increase in rates effected practically all the members, a general increase being ordered all along the line. Those opposing the action feel that the increase is burdensome and unwarranted.

The decision of the court will be appealed by the national officers, and pending the result of this appeal, no effort will be made to collect the assessments under the new rate.

with her mode of living she adopted a white kitten, fed the hungry little thing made a bed for it in her piano box and next morning it was gone. "That's bad luck," she remarked to Miss Hilles at the time, she said, "and just a little later the authorities appeared," she continued. Although Rheamont talked freely Thursday, he refused to make a statement under oath Friday night. During the day at the request of Prosecutor Ribble his bond was increased from $2,500 to $5,000. He was unable to furnish it and again spent the night in the county jail. During the day he retained Attorney A. A. Tends to Practice in Jail.

Despite his being imprisoned he is still able to do business as a medicine man. A mail order was received from Coshocton Friday for four packages of his medicine. He asked permission to fill the order.

Because of the many curious people who would stand about the house and discuss the arrest of the medicine man and the merits of the case, the large sign on his residence and office at Fifth and North streets was removed Friday. "Too many people were attracted by it," it was claimed.

"I would like to go home. It is awful to be mixed up in this affair, but I feel that I must stay here and be of what assistance I can to Grace," said Miss Lula Hilles of Barnesville, when seen at the home Friday night. She spoke about the merits of one remedy for the blood, sold by the doctor, which cured her, she said. She met the medicine man in Newark after she sprained her ankle.

"I want to go home and see my mother. She will read these reports in the papers and I want to tell her the straight of this. She won't know what to think," Miss Hilles stated that she would remain in Zanesville until after the examination in probate court. She is custodian of the household goods of Rheamont and Miss Gaver while they are in custody.

It was announced Friday afternoon that Rheamont and Miss Gaver would be arraigned in probate court.

DR. SMITH IS INDICTED FOR MURDER

Springfield, O., Nov. 23.—Dr. Arthur B. Smith, a leading physician, was indicted late yesterday on the charge of first degree murder for the alleged poisoning of his wife, Mrs. Florence Cavileer Smith, society and church leader.

Dr. Smith had no statement to make in the county jail today. His attorney, J. B. Malone said: "Dr. Smith, through me, desires to ask the public to withhold judgment until his side of the case is heard."

Dr. Smith took his arrest coolly, four minutes after the special grand jury called by Prosecutor Larbourne had returned its indictment, containing four counts.

Dr. Smith is charged with having given his wife cyanide of potassium in cocoa and also hypodermically on the morning of her death, March 18 last. Heart trouble was given as the cause of her death at that time.

Although rumors were abroad, no official investigation of Mrs. Smith's death was made until the doctor married Miss Mabel Claire Merchant, nurse at the City hospital, at her home in Newton Highlands, Mass., on Oct. 1.

The second Mrs. Smith firmly believes in her husband's innocence and said today that she was positive he would be cleared. Dr. Smith's aged mother is near death from the shock of his arrest.

TRIAL IN JANUARY.

Springfield, Nov. 23.—Dr. A. B. Smith, indicted for poisoning his wife, will not be arraigned today. It is probable, however, this will be done early next week. So far, no indication has been made as to when the trial will be held but it probably will go over until the January term of court.

SHOT BY A PLAYMATE.

Xenia, O., Nov. 23.—The accidental discharge of a rifle in the hands of Francis O'Connor may cost the life of his playmate, Thomas Lucas, 9 years old. The bullet penetrated the boy's abdomen.

EDITOR SAYS HISTORY WILL AVENGE WRONGS

Salem, Mass., Nov. 23.—Joseph J. Ettor, leader of the Lawrence textile strike, on trial as an accessory in the murder of Anna Lopize, today insisted on addressing a jury in his own behalf, when District Attorney Atwill completed his closing argument for the prosecution.

Rising in the cage, pale and trembling with emotion, Ettor declared: "I have been tried here, not upon my acts but upon my views. I make no threats, but history does. I want to reply to the district attorney and to say that if his conception of wealth as explained by him is correct, then all the political economists, the thinkers, all the great men and women of this country, have had no effect."

LESS THAN $3,000 NEEDED TO FINISH Y. W. C. A. CAMPAIGN

At noon Saturday the Y. W. C. A. subscription fund passed the $9,000 mark, leaving less than $3,000 to raise by Monday.

Subscriptions amounting to $876 were reported bringing the total to $9,446. To date the team headed by Mrs. Annie G. Hatch has secured $1,916. Mr. L. F. Carl's team has reported $1,291. Miss Norpell $1,192. Mr. Charles C. Metz $1,093. The leaders of several of the teams have been unavoidably absent from the city for the past two or three days and business matters have prevented a number of team workers from getting into the campaign but a grand rally is being planned for the next two days when it is hoped the campaign will be successfully concluded. The success of the campaign is assured though the work is not finished by any means.

It is probable that the Y. W. C. A. members now numbering more than 1,000 will meet for organization next Tuesday night. Membership dues may be paid tonight at Mazey's store and on Monday and Tuesday at the Meyer & Lundorf store.

A mass meeting for girls and women will be held Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist Episcopal church at 2:30. Miss Constance MacCorkle will speak.

Several of the local ministers met with the finance committee Saturday at lunch at Plymouth church at which time arrangements were made to have the Y. W. C. A. proposition presented Sunday morning in five minute talks at a large number of the Newark churches. At the churches there will be no solicitation of funds but a simple announcement will be made and pledge cards will be in the hands of ushers or others where they may be secured by any one wishing to make a subscription.

At the conclusion of the present campaign a complete list of the contributors will be published.

MODIFIED PEACE TERMS PLACED BEFORE TURKS

London, Nov. 23.—Nothing has developed within the last twelve hours to show whether the Turks will find the proposed modifications in the terms offered by the allied Balkan nations sufficient to induce them to agree to an armistice preparatory to definite peace. The plenipotentiaries now on their way to Tchatalaja on behalf of the allies are reported to be carrying with them fresh terms of peace in a form that may open the door which is still regarded as standing ajar for their reception.

The Ottoman government points out that it still has a half million soldiers to draw from, while the Bulgarians have none. The allied Balkan nations, however, retort that they are now in a position to march 150,000 troops, who have heretofore been engaged elsewhere, to swell the besieging forces in front of the Turkish lines at Tchatalaja.

Should the war continue, it is assumed in military circles that an attack will soon be opened on the forts along the Bardsanles, whose fall would permit the Greek fleet to bombard the Turkish capital.

In the meantime, a nerve-racking stream of rumors continues to pour out from Vienna, of the mobilization of Austrian and Russian troops. A news agency dispatch from Vienna says a censorship has been established on all telegraphic and telephonic communications from Austria-Hungary to foreign countries, since early this morning.

OFFER HONORS OF WAR.

London, Nov. 23.—The Balkan allies are understood to have waived their demands for the evacuation by the Turks of the lines of Tchatalaja and are willing that the garrison of Adrianople should march out with the honors of war according to the Fall Mail Gazette.

CRAZY MAN IS KILLED BY POSSEE

Minneapolis, Nov. 23.—Henry Polker, 26, an escaped madman, was shot and killed last night by a posse after he had shot and wounded Matthew Lenzen, 26, and Leonard Lenzen Jr., 10, at Hamel, a village 15 miles south of this place. He escaped from the asylum at Rochester and went to the Lenzen home. Firing through the window, he shot the two youths, who were seated about the fireplace. He then went to a barn on his father's farm, where Sheriff Langum and the posse found him. During an exchange of shots Polker was killed.

POISON DRAUGHT IS FATAL.

Zanesville, Nov. 23.—Maywood Smith, 48, married, and Doyle Rodecker, 19, both of Summerfield, drank poison by mistake for whiskey last night. Smith died an hour later and Rodecker cannot recover.

GOOD LUCK FOR BURGLARS.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Burglars hurried a horse shoe, wrapped in a newspaper, through the window of Berg & Co., jewelers, in Michigan Boulevard, yesterday, and escaped with jewelry valued at $2500. It is the fourth time the establishment has been robbed in a similar manner.

HAND TORN OFF.

Scottsburg, Ind., Nov. 23.—Herman Bobo, 23 years old, is minus his right hand as a result of that member being caught in a corn shredder. His hand was so badly mangled that amputation was necessary.

DOGS TRAIL SUSPECTS IN MINE TROUBLE

Charlestown, W. Va., Nov. 23.—The activity of the soldiers whose bloodhounds have been trailing suspects through the mountains of the martial law region of the Kanawha coal field resulted today in the capture near Leewood of a man whose name was given as King. He was wanted in connection with the attack on a military train last Friday, when Engineer Blankenship was shot.

The military court has adjourned its hearings until Tuesday, when it is said the remainder of the twenty-five cases will be heard. Among those to be tried is Samuel Russell, who was taken after a long chase which followed the shooting up of the town of High Coal.

BANKERS SENT TO ATLANTA

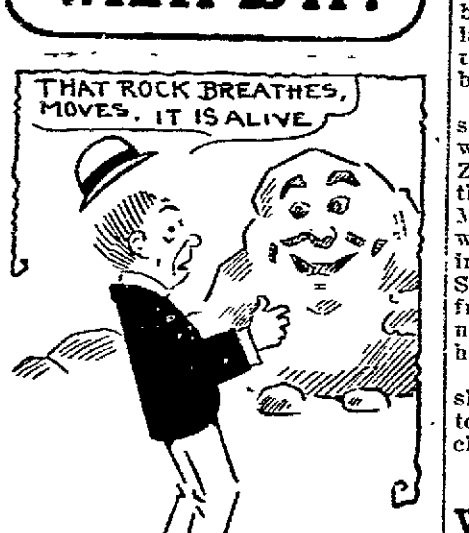

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 23.—Judge McCall, in the federal court here today, sentenced H. C. Wyne of Little Rock, Ark., E. L. Hendry of Memphis, J. H. Brooks of Memphis, Abner Davis of Oklahoma City, to five years in the federal prison and fined each $2,000. The sentence was passed on two counts in the indictment charging them with using the mails in conspiracy to defraud in connection with the failure of banks with which they were connected as officials. Immediately after the adjournment of court, U. S. Deputy Marshall Jolly arrested Hendry on a charge of violating the postal laws.

TWO TRAINMEN ARE KILLED IN COLLISION

Alexandria, Ky., Nov. 23.—A Southern passenger train collided with the Texas & Pacific express on a grade crossing here early today. All the passengers escaped with only slight injuries, but two trainmen were killed. Orders were misunderstood, it is claimed.

CECELIA FARLEY SET FREE BY JURY

Dramatic Scenes Enacted During Plea of Miss Farley's Attorney

QUOTED THE SCRIPTURE

Lines From Shakespear and Recited the Lord's Prayer to Impress Jury.

COLUMBUS, NOV. 23.—4 P.M., AFTER BEING OUT 3 1-2 HOURS THE JURY IN THE FARLEY MURDER CASE RETURNED: A VERDICT OF ACQUITTAL.

Columbus, Nov. 23.—After a trial lasting two weeks the case of Miss Cecelia Farley, the state house stenographer, under indictment for murder in the killing of Alvin E. Zollinger, advertising solicitor, was given to the jury in criminal court at 12:04 p. m. today.

In charging the jury Judge Marcus G. Evans, who heard the case, instructed the jurors to disregard the unwritten law in bringing a verdict.

Prosecutor Turner finished his plea for conviction after asking the jurors not to let the fact that the defendant is a pretty woman warp their judgments. "I want a warning to the men and women in this community that they cannot break the law," he said. "Don't put a premium on murder. If we can tell our fellow women that when they get tired of one lover they can shoot him and secure another, things that have come to a sad state."

Columbus, O., Nov. 23.—Casting practically every word of evidence aside, attorneys for Cecelia Farley yesterday appealed to the sympathies of the jurors to absolve her from the accusation of murdering Alvin E. Zollinger. Tears rolled down the cheeks of jurors and spectators as they referred to her as the "little girl" who had been wronged in her childhood and was willing to sacrifice her life for the man she loved, whom she is to marry, they said, when her freedom is attained.

Attorney Tompkins wound up his argument for the defense yesterday with an impassioned plea that Miss Farley be given her freedom. "Let her and Quigley go to the sunny Pacific Coast together, as they had planned, as man and wife, so they can enjoy the peace and love which has been in their hearts. Before you render your verdict, stop, look and listen, so that no harm will come to anyone," Mr. Tompkins said.

Mr. Tompkins recited Portia's mercy plea. "The quality of mercy is not strained," in "The Merchant of Venice." He followed with the Lord's Prayer. Heads of both jurors and spectators bent in reverence and hushed silence fell over the through, which was the largest of any day of the trial.

Mr. Tompkins read passages of Scripture bearing upon forgiveness for fallen women. His references for the love between Miss Farley and Quigley often reached the dramatic. "Quigley," he said, "came into her life like a beautiful sunshine through a dark cloud. She loved him and their only designs were to become as one and dwell in the land of flowers, there to spend their days in each other's embrace."

Commenting upon Miss Farley's statement at the police station, in which she confessed the shooting of Zollinger, he said it was made for the purpose of protecting Quigley. Mr. Tompkins said it was a womanly woman's sacrifice that she was willing to make. "Twice that of the Spartan mother. The he quoted from the Bible: 'Greater love hath no man than this, that he giveth up his life for a friend.'"

"Zollinger entered her home when she was but a mere child, and there toppled her from the pedestal where chastity had placed her," asserted (Continued on page 11, col. 1.)

FIRST TIRES TURNED OUT BY RUBBER FIRM IN NEWARK THIS P. M.

Amid the roar of milling and calendering machinery, the first products of the Pharis Tire & Rubber Company, Newark's newest industry, were turned out shortly after two o'clock this afternoon. Three automobile tires, perfect in their manufacture, according to the experts who watched the various operations of the plant, were manufactured and sent at once to Columbus, where they are wanted on a special order of the Pharis Sales Agency. It is believed that a capacity of fifty tires a day will be reached within the next few weeks, as soon as the various machines still under construction are erected and in operation.

The Pharis concern's organization and plans were recently outlined in the Advocate. It is essentially a Newark concern, with A. B. Lindorf as its president, and C. H. Otto Meyer, identified with the local Meyer & Lindorf department store, but a resident of Clinton, Iowa, as its vice-president. Ray Pharis, formerly of Pharis Brothers, tire jobbing firm which has been established in Columbus for several years, is the secretary-treasurer of the local concern and is assisted by his brother, as general manager. The firm has secured the services of A. A. Peterson, for twelve years identified with the large rubber industry of Akron in responsible capacities, as superintendent of the local tire manufacturers. S. M. Wolf, formerly in charge of departmental work at the Newark Tire Company's plant, is one of the experts secured by the Pharis Brothers for the establishing of their company. Clarence Wise, another local man, is in charge of the calendering machinery.

The three tires completed this afternoon are 34x3, 36x3 1/2, and 35x4 inches in size, and constructed of the best grades of rubber, with a secret composition that promises to revolutionize the tire industry if plans of the local manufacturers do not miscarry. The composition is the result of careful investigation by Mr. Peterson and a number of experts and is guaranteed to stand tread shocks much better than any of the better known brands. The tread is mounted on a 1, 1-4 ounce Sea Island fabric with pure gum friction, thus insuring a wear as strong as any tire on the market.

The operations of the Pharis company are being carried on in the building formerly occupied by the Simpson soap factory. On the front floor will be located the vulcanizing and milling machinery, on the second the construction department, with the third floor used as a stock cutting and mixing department. Among the machines included in the equipment of the plant are a 50 horse power electric motor, a modern vulcanizer with a capacity of twelve tires, a 50 H. P. boiler and 20 h. p. engine, as well as a rubber milling machine, used for the mastication of rubber and generally known as a "calender machine." This machine is the only one in operation at the plant at present, and is used in the rolling of the rubber stock to its proper gauges, after the stock leaves the rubber and compound mixing machine. The equipment will be increased as fast as the demand for tires warrants, and a great future is being prophesied by friends of the local concern.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES
The checker players will have their first meeting on Monday evening, Nov. 25th. All the "old time" players should come around. The fact that the state

Y. W. C. A. CAMPAIGN

A campaign has been in progress during the past week for the establishment of a Young Women's Christian Association in Newark.

More than one thousand girls have asked for the institution and have signed membership cards. More than $9,000 of the required $12,000 has been pledged.

An effort is to be made to complete the campaign by Monday and this effort will succeed if each citizen does his part. No large amount of money is needed from anyone. Three hundred people each giving a ten dollar note will complete the financing of the project. A subscriber may have three years in which to pay the contribution if desired.

The Y. W. C. A. will afford a practical way of helping the girls of Newark—helping them in many ways by providing amusement, physical training in a gymnasium—training intellectually, morally, physically and spiritually.

The Y. W. C. A. is entirely practical and the good that it does wherever the organization is established is beyond question. No more worthy enterprise has come to the attention of Newark people and it is gratifying to know that the people are pledging the necessary financial support. To succeed however $3,000 must yet be raised. Have you done your part?

THE LESSON LEARNED

The Columbus Dispatch reminds its readers of the calamity howl that was raised when Cleveland was elected to the Presidency in 1884 and the virulence of the criticism that followed the president throughout his term, and it calls attention to the difference in public sentiment toward Woodrow Wilson. The Dispatch comments thus: "We have learned something in the last quarter of a century—first, that no political party has a monopoly of patriotism; second, that a man who tries to be president of all the people ought to have a chance." If there is one lesson which time has taught with singular force it is just that which the Dispatch mentions first, that no party has a monopoly on patriotism. No party desires to destroy popular government or work the ruin of industry. Men may honestly differ as to men and measures, but they can be patriotic American citizens just the same.

Among the accounts of hunting calamities the most peculiar one comes in a dispatch from New Philadelphia. As the hunter punched a rabbit out of a hole the animal leaped out and struck him with such force that he fell down an embankment, dislocating his shoulder. Bunny escaped, of course, but an animal so dangerous as that is a menace to a community and should not be allowed to run at large. We have some Newark hunters who might be induced to make an excursion to that locality and rid it of such a terror.

Rheumatism
Is A Constitutional Disease.

It manifests itself in local aches and pains—inflamed joints and stiff muscles—but it cannot be cured by local applications.

It requires constitutional treatment, and the best is a course of the great blood purifying and tonic medicine which corrects the acid condition of the blood and builds up the system. Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

C. A. LAMBERSON, OF COSHOCKTON TO BE TRAVELING AUDITOR

(Coshockton Times.)
By the appointment of Chas. A. Lamberson as traveling auditor in the state liability board of awards that important division of government service gains a representative who by his pleasant personality, education and training has won a place in popular confidence and esteem which attends him throughout his advance.

With the call to Columbus Mr. Lamberson has resigned from the managerial position with the Goshen Coal Company.

As traveling auditor in the state liability work he will go to industries throughout Ohio to examine payrolls, ascertain the proportions are amount due to the state insurance fund out of which payments are made to workers disabled by accident.

C. A. Lamberson was born at Canal Lewisville, September 7, 1861. He graduated from the Coshockton High School. His initial step in the business world was made as deputy county auditor, gaining a thorough understanding of the value of systematic, well-regulated work.

He was general bookkeeper in the Commercial bank for three years until 1894, when he was appointed U. S. deputy internal revenue collector with headquarters at Springfield, Ohio.

In 1898 Coshockton county elected him auditor, and re-elected him. He has won honor as exalted ruler of the Coshockton Lodge of Elks.

The weather man has certainly showed no signs of displeasure with the result of the recent election. Being such a landslide it actually seems to meet his absolute approval.

THE POPULAR CAMPAIGN FUND.

(Youngstown Vindicator.)
The records show that 91,000 persons contributed $1,100,000 to the Democratic National campaign fund or to put it differently one man in sixty who voted for Wilson contributed on an average $10 each. This is probably the largest number of persons who ever contributed to a campaign fund, but it resulted in one of the smallest amounts on which a national campaign has been conducted in recent years.

The dollar contribution scheme fell through utterly, and the collections through newspapers proved trifling in amount.

It is probable that the Socialists set an example which will be followed generally in the next national campaign when they charged a small fee to the meetings addressed by noted speakers.

Catarrh
Breathe Booth's HYOMEI
and Refreshing Relief
Will Come in Three Minutes.

Australian Eucalyptus is a non-irritating, germ destroying liquid that is largely used by Catarrh and Throat Specialists and by physicians of the modern school.

HYOMEI is Australian Eucalyptus combined with the best of Listerian Antiseptics, and breathed through the inhaler into the lungs over the sore, inflamed membrane of the nose and throat it surely destroys the pernicious catarrh germs and ends all catarrhal misery.

For Catarrh, Coughs, Colds and Croup Booth's HYOMEI is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money returned.

Try it on that honorable basis; the directions are easy to follow and a complete outfit (inhaler and bottle of HYOMEI) can be obtained at drug stores for only $1.00. Extra bottle, if afterward needed, only 50 cents. Evans' Drug Store recommends Booth's HYOMEI.

Artificial Sapphires.
The chemical composition of the synthetic sapphire is the same as that of the natural sapphire. The only difference is that the real sapphire is crystallized, while the artificial sapphire is fused alumina or alumina glass. The Universe an Accident.
The universe, together with its parts, is not a thing but a number of accidents, ever changing and being renewed at every breath and linked together in a single substance and at each instant disappearing and being replaced by a similar set. In consequence of this rapid succession, the spectator is deceived into the belief that the universe is a permanent existence.—By Nur-Ad-Nur, Abd-Alrahman Jamil.

SALT RIVER

The long campaign is over, and on Salt River's shore we stand and watch the boats of those who tried to save this country from its grave, and only lost their goats. The river's cold and dark; the boatmen in their bark don't smile or sing or joke; they do not care a whoop what country's in the soup, what government goes broke. They sadly guide their ship the while their teardrops drip into the briny flood; the captain, bos'un, mate, have got their grouch on straight, the vessel's name is Mud. The sailors in the hold just stand around and sulk and curse their blighted lives; their hope, they mutter, ends because their faithless friends got after them with knives. Al, dismal is the scene! The old ship's masts career and shake each spar and yard, and from the haunted shore the sailors hear the roar of roarback and canard. The woods along the beach re-echo to the screech of elephant and moose; the donkey stands and brays for perished yesterday, and murmurs: "What's weighing men? Your voyage is in they'll bring you back again! Once from the grave, and help the People's cause. The schooner seems to know; her timbers groan in woe, she wails, tack and jaws!"

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

"SQUIRE CROKER OF GLENCAIRNE, EX-TOMMANY BOSS, IS 69.

Squire Croker of Glencairne, Ireland, retired leader of Tammany Hall and once the most powerful political boss in America, will tomorrow receive the congratulations of his numerous admirers on both sides of the Atlantic, the occasion being his sixty-ninth birthday. Richard Wolstead Croker was born at Black Rock, County Cork, November 24, 1843. His father, Eysa Coote Croker, was a farmer, and emigrated to America when the future boss of New York was two years old.

The formal education of the school-bred, a small part in the rearing of the lad who was destined for the "barren of Termany." In his youth he was a gambler, affiliating with the old "tunnel gang" and soon fought his way to leadership. A fighter born, he depended on his fists, and never "toted a cannon." His early ambition was to shine as a pugilist, and he engaged in many thrilling bouts, but he soon turned to politics as offering greater profits. Sentiment was an unknown quality to Croker. His eye was always for the main chance. Yet he was honest, as bosses go, and as loyal to his friends as any man that ever breathed.

Croker was twenty-three when Boss Tweed gave him a job as court attendant, and at twenty-four he became an aide-man. In the latter capacity he did nothing wonderful, but under the tutelage of Tweed and his assistant, Dick Connolly, Croker gained a wide knowledge of the game of practical politics as it was played in New York. In 1874 occurred an incident that for a time threatened to permanently eclipse the career of the young politician. In an election brawl a man named McKenna was shot and killed. One witness of the crime alleged he heard the dying man say, "Dick Croker croaked me." Croker was arrested and put on trial for his life. The jury disagreed, and a year later Croker was released and immediately returned to the political arena.

Absolutely Pure

The Woman Makes the Home

She makes it best who, looking after the culinary department, turns her back resolutely upon unhealthful, or even suspicious, food accessories. She is economical; she knows that true economy does not consist in the use of inferior meat, flour, or baking powder. She is an earnest advocate of home made, home baked food, and has proved the truth of the statements of the experts that the best cooking in the world today is done with Royal Baking Powder.

SOCIETY

The S. S. Chamberlin Lodge in Broadway, Granville, was the scene of a pretty affair last evening when Lambda Deteron Chapter of Phi Gamma Delta, entertained with an informal dancing party. The program was furnished by Johnson's String Trio. Those from Newark were: Misses Mabel Jones, Anne Sprague, Juliet Besuden, Messrs. John Ward and George D. Upson.

A company of young people composing the members of the Saturday Bridge club, is being entertained this afternoon by Miss Marion Weiant at her home east of the city.

Lawrence Wilson left Friday noon for Detroit to attend the wedding of his brother in that city, after which he will leave for Staunton, Virginia, where on Wednesday evening he will be married to Miss Jane Hale Gilkeson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Gilkeson. The wedding will be held at the home of the bride's parents, "Hillside," Augusta county, Virginia. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will make their home in Newark.

The Daughters of Liberty gave a progressive pedro party at the B. of R. T. hall last evening. At the close of the entertainment Mrs. Henry was awarded the cushion and Mrs. Peterman the cushion.

The Minerva club held its first meeting with Mrs. Floyd Goode of North Fourth street on Wednesday afternoon. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Clarence Johnson; secretary, Mrs. Floyd Goode; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Rexroth.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

Variety the Irritant of Life

"MONOTONY," Jack was saying to a little group of friends, "is the bane of life. People get into ruts, and it takes dynamite to get them out. Yet they miss an awful lot by everlastingly doing the same things over and over in the same old way."

Jack's wife listened attentively.

"Poor boy," she thought, "He must get awful tired of my house-keeping. I do things the same way all the time. I'll give him a little change."

"Watermelon!" exclaimed Jack, as he sat down to breakfast the next morning. "What in thunder have you got watermelon for breakfast for?"

"We always have oranges or grapefruit, so I thought I would change it. You said yesterday, you hated monotony. So I thought watermelon would be the greatest change I could make, as we never have it for breakfast, even when it is in season. I hunted everywhere to find one. I wonder why it is always considered a dinner fruit?"

Jack pecked at it rather disgustingly and finally pushed his plate away.

"Great Scott!" he said, as the maid brought in fried oysters. "Aren't we going to have any cereal?"

"We always have cereal. So I changed that too."

"Fried oysters don't seem to go for breakfast," he said, taking a small fraction of one.

"That's just a matter of habit," replied his wife. "Why aren't they just as good for breakfast as for supper?"

Jack didn't reply, but reached for his paper.

"This isn't my paper," he growled. "I'll report that carrier, if he doesn't leave the paper I order."

"But dear, I got up early on purpose so as to get him to leave the Times instead of the Post. I thought you must get awfully tired of reading the same paper every day."

"I can't find anything in this paper," he said peevishly. "I like to know where things are. Give me some coffee any way."

"I made tea," said his wife sweetly. "You know—"

"Great heavens! Isn't there anything I can eat? What kind of meal do you call this, a pink tea or a missionary supper?"

"But dear, I thought I'd have everything different. You said—"

"I must be going," interrupted Jack abruptly. "Where's my hat?"

"I put it in the laundry, and I brought down your last year's soft felt to wear instead of your derby."

"You certainly are off your head," said Jack.

"I had breakfast late, too, so you wouldn't have to take the same car and see the same people," went on his wife without noticing his remarks. Jack made an exclamation. "I'll be late at the office."

"That'll make things a little different there too."

"You bet it will," said Jack glumly. "When you are going to pull off this trick on me again, let me know, won't you?"

"But I was afraid you must be getting terribly tired of having everything the same way all the time. You said people missed a lot by having set habits, and that variety was the spice of life."

"Some spices are irritants," said Jack, as he went out and slammed the door.

Barbara Boyd

Helen Beard, Mrs. Carl Swisher, and Miss Genevra Smith of Columbus.

Mrs. Jay Cooper was hostess to the B. F. club Thursday evening at her home in Charles street. Bridge was the game and the honor guest Miss Harriett Rusk of Zanesville received the souvenir. Those present were Misses Rusk, Catherine Sedgwick, Lenora Phillips, and Mrs. Lee Moore.

Friday evening Miss Leontine Moore entertained the members of the Tuesday Evening Bridge club at her home in Seventh street, complimenting Miss Harriett Rusk of the Clarendon Hotel, Zanesville, the guest of Miss Lenora Phillips. At the close of the game the honor guest was given the prize.

The players were Miss Rusk, Mrs. Lee Moore, Mrs. Jay Cooper, Misses Lenora Phillips, Mary Maholin, Mary Follett, Catherine Sedgwick, Eleanor Beecher and Genevra Smith of Columbus.

Mrs. P. S. Phillips entertained the members of her sewing club Friday afternoon at her home in West Church street. The hours were spent with the needles followed by a dainty refectory. The members present were Mesdames J. R. Horner, John Leidigh, George Orr, Emma Morse, A. Schiff, James Jones, George Starrett, W. B. Patton. Guests of the club were: Mesdames Chandler Tucker, Alice Jones, Henry Ashcraft, William Tucker, Reed Boring, Jesse Flory, W. W. Gard, T. J. McClelland, and Mrs. Preston of Co-shecton.

In the evening Messrs. George Orr, Chandler Tucker, William Tucker, J. A. Flory, and W. W. Gard joined their wives and were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Phillips at dinner.

Miss Catherine Miller entertained her Sabbath school class, Saturday afternoon, November 16th from 2 until 5 o'clock. Sixteen little girls were present and they spent the afternoon with various games.

Refreshments were served to the following scholars and guests: Misses Hazel Wilson, Helen Willey, Gracie Moore, Mary Long, Mary Courson, Nellie Pugh, Grace Moringo, Eva Gamble, Nellie George, Esther Taylor, Helen and Clara Crossley, Beatrice Crossley, Beatrice Complain, and Mabel Mason. Mary Ryan and Edith Mason were the guests of the teacher and class.

Mr. Roland Crist of Park avenue was the victim of a pleasant surprise Friday evening, when a group of his friends met at his home in honor of his twentieth birthday anniversary. The features of the evening were the selections played by Mr. Schaller and Miss Minnie Staugh on the piano; another was the speech made by Mr. after Rauck of the Y. M. C. A. when he presented to the host a handsome tie-pin.

The supper was a delicious affair prepared and served by Mr. and Mrs. Crist, assisted by Mrs. Turner of Park avenue.

Those present were: Misses Ella Talbitt, May Walker, Anna Crist, Henrietta Slaughter, Helen Staugh, Pauline Talbitt, Margaret Crist, Minnie Staugh, Deed Staugh, Hazel Bales and Marguerite Turner; Messrs. Roland Crist, Neil Floyd, Leonard Richardson, Norris Taylor, Paul Pfeiffer, Harry Tinn, John Criticos, Joseph Gahnor, "Bud" Schaller, "Bud" Ryan, Lawrence Turner and Walter Rauck.

Thirteen tables of bridge were in play at the home of Mrs. O. C. Jones of Hudson avenue, Friday afternoon. At the conclusion of the game Mrs. W. F. Upson and Mrs. Albert Rosebraugh received the prizes. Pink roses and ferns were used effectively through the rooms.

Miss Elizabeth Devlin was the hostess at a surprise masquerade party rendered at her home on Morris street by about fifteen friends last evening. The affair was held to celebrate Miss Devlin's birthday and a most enjoyable time is reported by all. Enchre formed the chief attraction of the evening, prizes being won by the Misses Bertha Kelly and Harriet Young.

On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Raymond Burch was hostess to her sewing club. Sewing and music were the diversions, followed by a six o'clock dinner.

Those present were: Mesdames W. E. Fulton, C. L. V. Holtz, C. Wendt, Lee Fleming, Elmer Orr, Will Briggs, J. B. Burch, Joseph Kirk, Charles Harner, Samuel Swan, Fred Squiggins, Allen Stewart, P. W. Faust and Nez Davis.

ANDREA-ASSMANN.

Friends in Newark have received announcements of the marriage of Charles Andrea, president of the Consumers Brewing company, to Mrs. Emily Assmann of Columbus. The wedding ceremony was performed at the home of Mrs. Assmann's sister, Mrs. Arthur H. Skillings at Worcester, Mass., last Monday. The announcement of the marriage came as a surprise to most of Mr. Andrea's friends in this city, only a few of his more intimate acquaintances knowing of his approaching nuptials.

Mrs. Assmann resided in Columbus, where her husband, before his death, was associated with the Foster brewery. She is well known here.

The announcement cards state that Mr. and Mrs. Andrea will be at home to their friends at 665 South Front street, Columbus, after December 15.

Truth About Proud Man.

"When a woman gets frightened at night she just pulls the bed clothes over her head, says she is terrified out of her wits, and goes to sleep," says one who knows, "but with a man it is different. He says he is not afraid, pushes the clothes down and lies trembling awake for two or three hours, straining his ears at every sound."

PURLOINED COAL FROM THE B. & O.

Woman Fined, But Promised to Refrain from Habit and Gets Suspension—Court News.

May Gromb was fined $10 and costs by Squire D. M. Jones Friday when she pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing coal from cars of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co., the affidavit in the case having been filed by George Mercer, the railroad officer. The payment of the fine was suspended by the court on condition that the defendant refrain from similar acts in the future.

According to the testimony offered by Officer Mercer, the defendant was not only guilty of the theft of fuel herself, but also induced some little boys to engage in the practice.

Granted Divorce.

The probate court has granted Lena Istler a decree of divorce from George Istler. Mrs. Istler is also granted the custody of their two children.

DECLARED INSANE.

Daniel Cook, a colored man, 67 years of age, was declared insane in probate court Saturday morning and ordered committed to the State Hospital. Cook's mania takes the form of great fear and nervousness and at times he has become violent. Dr. W. S. Turner and Doctor C. F. Legg were the examining physicians in the case.

DECISION RESERVED.

The testimony in the divorce case of Kate Rosebraugh vs. Clifton Rosebraugh was completed in probate court Friday afternoon but Judge Hunter reserved his decision in the matter, taking it under advisement.

NAMED ADMINISTRATOR.

Joseph Brownfield has been appointed administrator of the estate of Mary M. Cole. Bond was set at $14,000.

Mr. Sheridan Here.

W. F. Sheridan, inspector of transportation of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, with headquarters at Louisville, passed through this city this afternoon on Pennsylvania train No. 6. During his brief stop here he was met by his brother James Sheridan, probation officer. Mr. Sheridan was enroute east on business for his company.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Efficient Eating.

The following rules for efficient eating have been laid down by Eugene Lyman Fiske, M. D.:

Eat regularly in the pleasantest attainable circumstances, when the mind and body have had at least a brief rest.

Chew all starchy foods—cereals, bread, pastry, potatoes and other vegetables—thoroughly by the "tasting" method.

Within certain limitations eat such foods as please the palate on thorough fasting and avoid foods that are displeasing.

Do not form the habit of prolonged, tiresome nibbling and excessive chewing of small quantities of food. Atrophy or debility of the digestive organs and lowered nutrition may result from such practice.

Pay some attention to the "balance" of a meal. Milk, eggs and meat at the same meal give an enormous excess of proteid. Bouillon, lettuce and fresh fruit are woefully lacking in proteid. The addition of a sandwich or custard supplies this lack. An excess of salt or sugar should be avoided. Sugar is valuable fuel food, but taxes the digestive powers, especially when concentrated and is apt to cloy the appetite. It should be well diluted.

By proper methods of eating, insatiation, etc., the amount of food taken will usually be limited to the body needs. The principle of less work, less food, however, should be remembered.

Water should be taken freely before meals and moderately during meals. There is no need to carry the "flushing out" process to an extreme. People with heart disease or dropsy may be injured by excessive water drinking, and the average man positively needs no more than two quarts of water a day.

Remember that the value of food in calories is no measure of its digestibility. Nuts and baked beans have a high food value chemically, but many people cannot digest them. In which case their poison value is higher than their food value.

The safest rule is: Mind and body being rested, a well balanced mixed diet, moderate in quantity, varied according to the work done, thoroughly tasted and cheerfully eaten.

Flagged Train With Shirt.

Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alston, Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible plight when I began to use them," he writes, "my stomach, head, back and kidneys were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition, but four bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of their matchless merit for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Price 50 cents at F. D. Hall's.

RECEIVER ASKS CONFIRMATION

Gearwood Plant Brings $12,775 and Purchaser Pays $7100 in Cash. The Report is Filed.

In the matter of The Newark Gearwood Company vs. The Newark Trust Company, the receiver of the Gearwood Company, W. C. Christian, has filed his report. He reports the sale of two parcels of real estate, machinery, tools, office fixtures and furniture, horse, wagons and harness to C. F. Colville, at a price of $12,775. A cash payment of $7175 has been made and the residue will be paid in two equal payments, one due in one year and one in two years from the date of sale. The payments are secured by mortgages.

The receiver asks confirmation of sale and authority to execute the necessary conveyances.

The third parcel of real estate was not sold because of the fact that there was no bidder.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The High school will be dismissed on next Thursday and Friday for the Thanksgiving vacation.

Mr. Benjamin Chapin will appear on the second number of the High school lecture course on Thursday evening, November 28th. He will impersonate Abraham Lincoln.

As Lancaster High school has cancelled the Thanksgiving football game to have been played here, the game with South High this afternoon will unfortunately be the last of the football season. The local management has tried to secure a game in place of the Lancaster one, but has not been successful, consequently season tickets can be redeemed or applied on the first basketball game.

Invitations reading as follows have been issued by the Senior class:

The Senior class cordially invites you to a Thanksgiving program at the High school auditorium, Wednesday evening, November 22nd, at 8 o'clock. Admission free.

The music for the evening will be furnished by the excellent Boys' Glee club and High school orchestra.

Thanksgiving offerings for the poor of the city were taken during the past week by the various session room teachers of the High school. The amount collected to date is $17.54.

Mrs. H. F. Moninger, wife of Mr. Moninger of the faculty, has sufficiently recovered from a severe case of typhoid fever to be moved to her home in North Eleventh street. The best wishes of the High school attend her for a speedy recovery.

At the conclusion of the chapel exercises yesterday morning, a portion of the morning session was used to practice the H. S. yell for the game with South High. A large crowd of rooters, girls and boys, are expected to be out at Wehrle Park to cheer as they have never done before in order to help the team capture the game from South.

The pupils and teachers appreciated the entertainment recently given by the National Cash Register company of Dayton, whose representatives were here the first of the week. Through the efforts of Mr. Vail, the entertainments were given.

The Belleville has gone to press and will be distributed in a few days. Look for the new feature of cuts at the headings of the various departments.

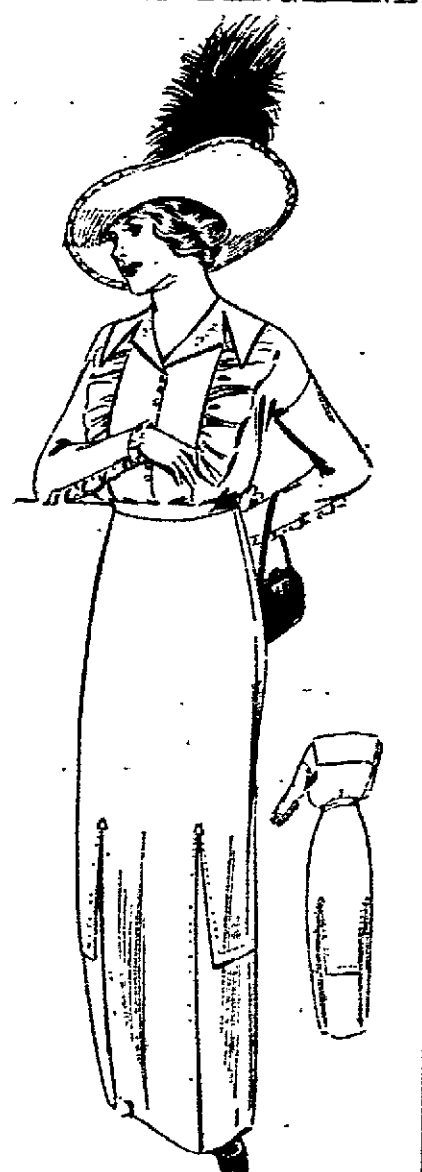

Next week the end of the second six weeks of school. At this time the Normal class which has been having instruction in English grammar under Miss Allen, arithmetic under Mr. Carr, and methods under Supt. Hawkins and Mr. Barnes will take final examinations in these subjects. During the next twelve weeks the class will study literature, history and methods.

The Science club met last evening at seven o'clock and presented the following program:

The waist requires, in medium size, 13-4 yards of 44-inch material; 1-2 yard of 18-inch velvet; 1 yard of 5-inch lace; 11-5 yards of 11-2-inch lace. The skirt requires, in medium size, 23-4 yards of 44-inch material.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Treatment of Burns.

The treatment of superficial burns, or at least of those that are not very deep seated, may generally be limited to these very simple practices: In the first place, do not pierce the blisters; but, on the contrary, carefully protect them with gauze, and if despite every attention there are some points at which epidermis has been removed these should be minutely cleansed with a slightly antiseptic solution or with boiled water. The blisters should not be emptied of their contents and cleansed until the underlying skin is definitely formed and there is no further risk of infection. This requires about eight days.

IS IT YOUR KIDNEYS?

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles—A Newark Citizen Gives a Valuable Hint.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is where danger often lies. You should realize that these troubles often lead to dropsy or Bright's disease. An effective remedy for weak or diseased kidneys is Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the experience of a resident of Newark who has tested Doan's.

George K. Buckel, 31 Granville St., Newark, Ohio, says: "I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone. I had pains in my back and kidneys. The kidney secretions were also irregular in passage. I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from A. F. Clayton & Co.'s Drug Store, and they gave me entire relief. Store and they gave me entire relief. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

FIRST THINGS

The first reference to "Old King Cole," the "merry old soul," of the famous nursery rhyme, was made in a book written by Dr. William King, who was born on this date in 1633. The version given by Dr. King is somewhat different from that now in vogue. It is probable that the song was composed in the seventeenth century, although some investigators think it is much older. Halliwell identifies the merry monarch with Cole or Col, a semi-mythical king of Britain, who is supposed to have reigned in the third century. The Scotch also have an "Old King Coul," said to have lived in the fifth century. Freeman and other historians say a King Cole ruled Britain in the sixth century. King Rene of Anjou, who flourished in the fifteenth century, has a considerable following who believe he was the original of the ruler who "called for his pipe, and called for his bowl, and called for his fiddlers three." Still others say that the reference to the pipe indicates that Old King Cole lived at a period after Raleigh introduced tobacco into Europe, but this does not necessarily follow, as a "pipe" might mean a musical instrument.

Y. W. C. A. MEMBERS PLEASE NOTICE

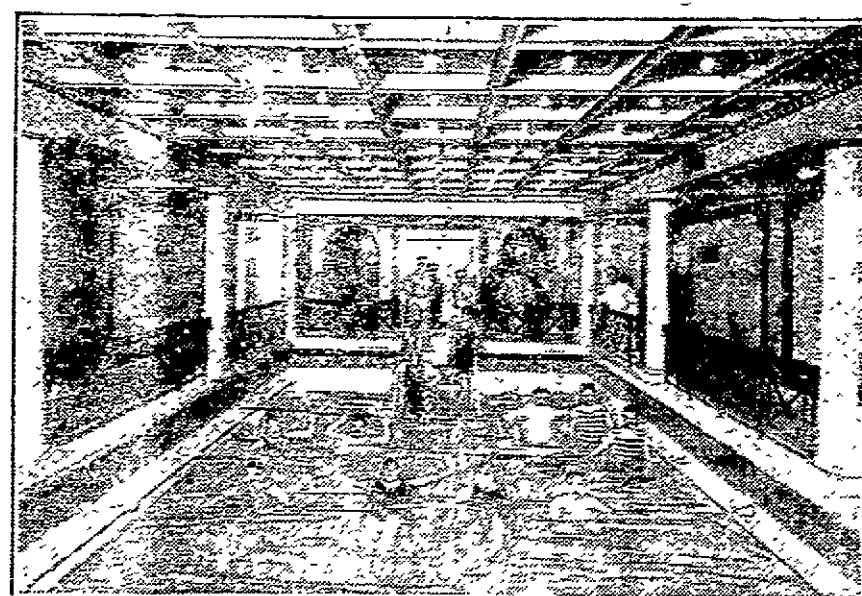

No organization of the Y. W. C. A. can be effected until the membership fees are paid. Only those whose annual dues are paid can participate in the election of the officers and the appointment of the various committees. In Portsmouth, 1200 of the 1300 members who were secured paid their membership dues before the organization was effected and it is expected that fully 90 of the more than 1000 girls who have signed membership cards here will pay their fees of $1.00 each within the next few days. The membership committee will be at the Mazy dry goods stores tonight and at the Meyer & Lindorf store on Monday and Tuesday to receive them.

IF YOU ARE A DRINKING MAN

You had better stop at once or you'll lose your job. Every line of business is closing its doors to "drinking" men. It may be your turn next. By the aid of ORRINE thousands of men have been restored to lives of sobriety and industry. We are so sure that ORRINE will benefit you that we say to you that if after a trial you fail to get any benefit from its use, your money will be refunded. When you stop "drinking," think of the money you'll save; besides, sober men are worth more to their employers and get higher wages. Costs only $1.00 a box. We have an interesting booklet about ORRINE that we are giving away free on request. Call at our store and talk it over.

SWIMMING POOL AT SEA.

All the delights of sea bathing may be enjoyed nowadays on shipboard. The tourist dons his or her bathing suit for a plunge into a surprisingly large body of salt water. If the boat be rolling, so much the better, since the waves set up in the swimming pool will exactly reproduce those of an ordinary surf. The largest and most luxurious of these baths is that aboard the S. S. Victoria Luise of the Hamburg-American line, illustrated in the accompanying photograph. The bath is tiled throughout and brilliantly lighted. The sea water is deep enough for diving, and a large party of bathers may swim freely about without crowding.

The water is pumped in from the sea so that a plentiful supply of fresh or rather salt water is always available. This newest luxury of sea travel is especially welcome on southern cruises made by this steamer to the West Indies. The tourist on overtaking summer weather finds that a daily sea bath makes the day complete. The galleries surrounding the swimming pool are often filled with spectators to watch the exciting games of water polo and other water sports which the great pool makes possible.

A Play For Everybody

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is the dramatization of a famous novel, of a famous author by a famous dramatist. At Auditorium you witness this great production as John Fox guided you through the pages of his great American story. Eugene Walter has made it possible in his dramatization for you to see the June you have dreamed of. Three million men, women and children have followed the little barefoot girl from her cabin in the hills through all the vicissitudes of her fight for love over feudalism and not one can afford to actually miss seeing what their imagination must have pictured.

The Theatres

The appearance here on Monday evening, Nov. 25 of Eugene Walters great play, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" should prove one of the dramatic treats of the season. Most excellent reports have reached me from every city in which this company has appeared. In Hartford, Conn., in October the company played a three days engagement and made such a pronounced hit that they were immediately booked for a return of three nights two weeks later, upon which occasion, packed houses again greeted them.

Newark playgoers can make no mistake on this attraction, which I positively guarantee to be one of the dramatic treats of the season.

F. E. JOHNSON,
Manager Auditorium

the awakening of her love for John Hale. Step by step the story develops and the unconscious wooing of Jack by June sweeps onward with the freshness of an upland breeze, and she realizes what she has to overcome when she notices Dave's dislike of Hale growing stronger every day. But her love is epitomized when she takes her first farewell of Jack and says, "I will always wait for you beneath the whispering pine." Then June goes to school, she hears the rumors regarding herself and Hale, and sees the breaking of a storm, the renewal of the Tolliver-Palm feud.

Her cousin Dave is a fugitive, accused of shooting Jack's partner, June, who is in doubt as to whether Hale has been killed by Dave or not, hides her cousin in her bedroom. The man he shot is carried into the cabin by June's father, and June shows plainly her relief that it is not the man she loves who has been struck by Dave's bullet. Hale follows and demands the surrender of Dave. June refuses to disclose his hiding place, and here Eugene Walters' master-hand is apparent, when he conceives the heart-gripping scene between love and duty. June sounds forth an epic on the law of the family and the law of the land, and when the wounded man denies that Dave is the one who shot him, both Hale and June are thankful to him for the reconciliation comes in the

She, however, soon finds that she is in love with the young man, and decides to protect him. With this as the tangle, the author is said to have constructed many amusing tangles and worked them out with a bright dialogue. Prominent in the cast besides Miss Mills may be mentioned Walter Coupe, Pierre Keegan, Wilbur Cox, Count De Vasser, Abbott Adams, Kenneth M. Harlan, Katherine G. Roy, Vivian Gill, Edna Stillwell and others.

Seats on sale Monday, and the attraction will be seen for the first time at $1.00 scale.

The White Squaw.

Della Clark, author of the romantic American drama "The White Squaw," to the seen at the Auditorium, Thursday, Nov. 28, matinee and night, has written a play not only founded on fact, but she has drawn for material upon one of the most picturesque periods of this country's history. The scenes are laid in the forests of Michigan, just a century ago, and the characters are practically new to the stage. The story has to do with two sisters who grow up, each in ignorance of the other's being. One of them is reared by Indians and is made to believe she is their own child. Fate throws the sisters together under conditions romantic, dramatic and appealing, and it is from this situation of tender sentiment and strong heart in-morning, and June and Hale are married by the old justice of the peace, beneath the lonely pine, ending a romance that begins at sunset and closes at sunrise.

"THE WHITE SQUAW" AT THE AUDITORIUM THURSDAY AFTERNOON AND EVENING.

The play, which will be presented by the strong New York company of players, comes to the Auditorium on Monday, Nov. 25.

Alma, Where Do You Live? The attraction at the Auditorium Wednesday, Nov. 27, will be the splendid and beautiful production of George V. Hobart's English version of "Alma, Where Do You Live?" with Florence Mills and the original New York production as seen at Weber's theatre, New York, during its long run. Alma is a real musical comedy—a "vaudeville," they call it in France. The Englishman would name it a musical comedy. New York called it a comic opera with an all-star cast. In fact, as with every piece, the public is most interested in its plot and construction than in its title.

Having been left a fortune of four million francs, so the story of the play goes, Pierre Le Peach, an expectant and unsophisticated, finds that the bequest provides that he must not make love to any woman or propose to any by a certain date. In case he violates the wishes of the deceased, the fortune goes to others, who immediately plan to secure it, and prevail upon Alma, a fascinating milliner, to lure Pierre to proposal.

terest that a beautiful and typically American play has been built. The seat sale opens Tuesday and patrons will do well to buy well in advance for the holiday attraction.

Bunty Pulls the Strings.

On Wednesday, Dec. 4 the Auditorium will have as an attraction the dramatic sensation of two continents in the cut-of-the-ordinary comedy "Bunty Pulls the Strings."

The play is by Graham Moffat, a Scotch writer and actor, and is now in its second year at the Haymarket Theatre in London, England. New York celebrated its 49th performance on August 12th at the Comedy Theatre, where it ran over a year, and Chicago revelled in a "Bunty" season for six months. Messrs. Shubert and William A. Brady are American producers.

The title arises from the fact that "Bunty" solves all domestic entanglements that occur during the course of the comedy; in other words, she "pulls the strings." Bunty is the daughter of a Scotch village grocer, Bunty's father, Thomas Bigger, is being induced to marry one Susie Simpson, who years before, gave Tammas some money to invest for her, but he used it to pay off his son's debts instead. At the same time there appears Edwin Dunlop, to whom Tammas was engaged to be married. Bunty, who has a love affair of her own, now steps in and straightens out the complications.

The entire action takes place in two days, one of which is a doleful Scotch Sabbath.

The Prince of Pilsen.

Henry W. Savage will present at the Auditorium on Friday, Dec. 6 that perennial success, "The Prince of Pilsen," revived this season on an elaborate scale and presented by a most excellent company, including Jess Dandy, who will appear in his original character of Hans, the Cincinnati brewer. "The Prince of Pilsen" needs no introduction to local playgoers, having been seen here four years ago by the same superb company that is presenting it now. It is one of the best musical comedies ever written and should prove popular with Newark musical lovers.

The Traveling Salesman.

James Forbes' latest drama, "The Traveling Salesman," a comedy in four acts with a full line of plain and fancy laughs, will be displayed on Saturday, Dec. 7 at the Auditorium.

In "The Traveling Salesman" the author has written a humorous exposition of the characteristics of the modern drummer and shows a surprising knowledge of the life of the "night of the grip." Knowing the value of heart interest in a play, Mr. Forbes has interwoven a most interesting love story that fits in naturally with the other scenes and the result is a happy blend of comedy and drama. A company of more than usual excellence will interpret the various roles.

The Pink Lady.

Nothing quite the equal in size and importance in the musical comedy field has ever been seen in Newark to compare with Klaw and Erlanger's production of "The Pink Lady," which is booked for an early appearance at the Auditorium.

This newest international musical hit in the popular field of entertainment is in three acts and as many scenes. Its book and lyrics are written by C. M. S. McLellan, the author of "The Belle of New York" and "Leah Kleschna," while the score is the work of Ivan Caryll of the Gaiety Theatre, London, who has half a hundred great hits to his credit, but in none of which has he registered the popular success that he has with "The Pink Lady." It is a delightfully clean cut and charming performance made brilliant by the most pleasing music that has been turned out for a work of this kind in years.

The Orpheum.

A big feature bill is in line for the Orpheum on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. A greater entertainer is Lonnie Follette, the boy mimic in character impersonations.

Joy Cornish, comedienne, will also take part in next week's bill, singing several up-to-date songs. She also has many funny jokes to offer.

A singing and musical act will also be on the bill. Lynn and Bonnie Hazard furnish many good musical numbers. The feature of this act is the Balkan dance, which is entirely new to vaudeville. Hiel, Bowen & Zorn, the comedy acrobats, will also take part in the big feature production the first three days of the week. Many comedy situations are seen throughout this act.

The bill is a good one. Miss Ada Carlton, the girl with the golden voice, Jessie Bell Hale & Co., in the dramatic sketch entitled "Midnight," featuring Baby Jessie Bell Hale, Mr. George Taylor, singing comedian, with many up-to-date songs, and last but not least, comes Leon Adiean Sisters, comedy jugglers, and pantomime novelty entertainers.

Stephali Nov. 25-26.

Berenice Lathrop, who has been selected to assist Stephali at the First Presbyterian church concert-lectures next Monday and Tuesday, is an instrumentalist of high rank. She has won for herself a place in the front rank of the soloists of Europe and has accompanied Stephali in her earlier American tour. She is a pianist of power and skill. These concert lectures are under the auspices of the Juvenile Aid society.

Frenzied Finance.

A Pathe drama of society life, which led to a young man's ruin and his subsequent death by his own hand. The fickleness of Dame Fortune and the usual outcome of the get-rich-quick scheme. The panic in the Stock Exchange. All combine to make this a thrilling story from start to finish. The play is in three reels and is hand-colored. It will be shown at the Mazda Monday afternoon and evening.

AT GRANVILLE DEC. 6.

The Phi Mu Alpha or Sinfonia fraternity of Denison Conservatory of Music has completed arrangements by which the celebrated trio of musicians forming the Hans Kronold Concert Co. of New York will make their appearance in Granville Dec. 6. This company is one of the foremost in the musical world of America. The company consists of Hans Kronold, cellist; Miss Ruth Harris, lyric soprano, and Clayton Robbins, baritone; Mr. Ivan Eisenberg of New York will accompany.

Mr. Hans Kronold appeared on the Denison Conservatory about two years ago. Those who heard him then were delighted.

Miss Harris is well known to many people in this vicinity, and those who are acquainted with her know of her beautiful personality.

This is one of the best combinations of artists in two different lines of music that is on the concert stage today.

Cohan to Write a Few New Plays.

"I hope to," confided George Cohan to a close personal friend, "I hope to, before I retire from the game, write a play for every star on the American flag."

"How many's that, George?" innocently inquired the confidant.

"Er—r—what's that?" sputtered the comedian. "Oh, count 'em up yourself."

QUESTION FOR MUSIC LOVERS

Just What Do You Hear When You Attend a Concert or Listen to an Orchestra?

The above question was put to me many years ago, under circumstances that made it worth more to me than a full year of instruction under any master of the old world or new.

I was coming away from one of my first symphony concerts, when I met my violin teacher, and told him I had just heard the great orchestra. "Is that so?" he remarked. "Well, what did you hear?"

"Oh, the Unfinished Symphony and—"

"But you are only telling me what was on the program. What I asked was of more importance. I wanted to know what you heard."

I started to say that there were nearly a hundred musicians, that they played all kinds of instruments, but he interrupted again. "Yes, I know, but what did you hear? Was it a great noise or did it say something to you?"

Now I began to understand, and of course I had no words to express my tional communica on and commercialism and the universal diffusion of intelligence, that competition in the search for knowledge has been tremendously stimulated, says a writer in the Metropolitan Magazine. In the realm of the intellect and the senses emulation is encouraged and each new discovery or achievement that promises greater progress for mankind is hailed with impartial enthusiasm. The world is ready to pay homage equally to Marconi, Lister, Rodin, Reinhardt, Tolstoi, Loeb, Peary or Amundsen. None will be denied the acknowledgment due him because he was born in one country and not in another. It is the patience, daring, endurance, persistence, wisdom and passion for truth and knowledge as manifested in his works that are accepted as the measure of his worth. It is only when economic and political supremacy is in question that the nations and races maintain hideous and barbaric relations toward one another. Then envy, suspicion and thoughts of mutual destruction are accepted as natural, logical and inevitable. Then the world divides itself into armed camps and group alliances are made as safeguards of one nation against the other. In everything but the one vital, human essential of the welfare of the people, who sustain out of their poverty the armaments in times of peace and give of their lives when war is rampant, the world's rulers are content to see amity and brotherhood prevail.

It takes a lot of imagination to be a poet, or even to imagine you are feelings. But I thought about it very often for some time, and wondered what music really was; what other people heard; whether any one ever heard what I did; if they ever found themselves powerfully moved at a great climax in the music; if they preferred to go to concerts alone and sit in a dark corner and listen without looking in the direction of the stage. And as I gained more experience as a listener there were thousands of questions that arose from that one simple question. What did I hear? What did you hear when you listened to good music?—Exchange.

BETTY REPENTS

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

Betty had shown signs of rebellion since the moment the nurse had plunged her into her first small tub; at the age of ten she was pretty but self-willed; at sixteen she threatened to elope with a second-rate actor because she was refused a racing motor car. Arriving at twenty-one, beautiful and headstrong, Betty considered herself a very much abused person.

But with all her faults Betty was adorable and adored. Her parents loved her with a devotion that spoke well for her ultimate good; they knew that her perversity would one day melt before the light of reason. In many small instances Betty had already succumbed to their tactful methods, but in big things she was obstinate; she disliked giving in to the will of another.

The crisis came when Betty's parents flatly refused to let her take a trip to Paris with Mathilda Davis. Mathilda had a husband somewhere on the globe but she preferred to study painting in the Latin quarter to living in domestic bliss. So vividly had she painted the joys of student life to the untutored Betty that the latter felt life no longer possible without some of those joys. After trying every wile at her command in order to gain her parents' consent and failing, Betty defied parental authority and skipped off with Mathilda to Paris.

Before taking her leave Betty's father had looked long and steadily into his wayward daughter's half-shamed eyes.

"Remember!" he said with stern visage, "you are leaving my house for the last time. In accepting the chaperonage of that woman you are no longer a daughter of mine! We have given you every comfort in life, and now if you prefer to galavant through the streets of Paris with a woman of that caliber to living respectably with your parents you are at liberty to do so." Peter Girard turned from his daughter without so much as a second glance.

By force of will Betty swallowed the great lump in her throat. Had her father taken her in his arms she would probably never have sailed for Paris, but he did not and Betty's eyes flashed.

"Very well!" she cried back defiantly, "I will not come back!" And for fear lest the threatened tears fall Betty went hurriedly from her father's house and into the waiting village omnibus. Once inside its musty depths Betty had a good cry. Through her tears she could see her mother's calm, beautiful face when she had said, "I hope you are going to be happy in your new life, Betty."

And when the rumble of departing carriage wheels died away Peter Girard turned to his wife and there was a twinkle in his eyes. He took his wife in his arms.

"Cheer up, dear," he told her, "our daughter has merely gone on a trip of disillusionment and she will come flying back to her little mother and her daddy before another two moons have waned."

"Two months is a long time without Betty," smiled the mother.

If two months seemed long to her parents in Long Island, they proved endless to Betty in Paris.

She had enjoyed the ocean trip to the utmost. The newness of it all and the pleasure of meeting so many interesting persons cast out all homesickness for the time being. But try as she might to retard it, Betty felt herself drawing within her shell as far as Mathilda Davis was concerned. The intimacy brought about by sharing one cabin had not enhanced the woman's charm.

Betty had been led to expect that those persons on the boat who had seemed such good friends would prove the same on land. It would take a third or even fourth trip to convince Betty that the friendship of shipboard is only a passing fancy. So Betty met her first disillusionment. In Paris she saw two of the men who had been charmed by her presence on shipboard, but things were not the same and after a dinner at a cafe or an evening at the opera they, too, dropped out of her life. At the end of a fortnight Betty found herself a stranger in a strange land.

That she was paying the greater half of the expenses did not bother her, but the type of men who frequented their studio disgusted her. Betty found herself longing for big-clean-minded Tom Hillary, who thought all women pure and beautiful and sweet.

She realized that Paris and many things Parisian would have been beautiful to her had she not been so lonely. It stole over Betty's consciousness gradually that happiness did not come with having one's own way.

After a few weary days of trying for the first time in her twenty-one years to plan her own life, Betty decided to go to London, where she would at least be among her own people. It was a relief to walk along the London streets and find herself unmolested by dapper little men with black mustaches. No one looked at her upon the street and no one seemed even to notice her presence.

Betty's eyes grew wistful and her lips dropped at the corners. No one out of the thousands of human beings in the largest of all cities loved her. She was completely and absolutely alone.

With stubbornness greatly diminished in her nature and pliability augmented Betty walked thoughtfully past St. Paul's cathedral and down Cheapside.

As little things change the current of life, just so a little thing sent a rush of tears to Betty's eyes. It was the sight of four tiny typewriters in a window on Cheapside. Betty's father had bought her one of those very portable machines with the hope that she would develop a budding sense of poetry in her nature.

"Daddy loves me and so does mamma," she told herself, "and I have been a selfish little cat! I am going down to the old Bow street church and think things over."

Betty walked on down toward the church whose bells had told Dick Whittington to turn back again toward London. "Perhaps I, too, can hear something in the bells," sighed Betty.

A sense of awe stole over her when she stood within the ancient, historic edifice and she slipped quietly into a pew. There was no one in the church and Betty was glad because she felt like crying. In an effort to divert her mind from the lump that was rising in her throat she glanced about at the wonderful windows, and as her eyes rested on the one above the altar the tears came unheeded.

The Virgin Mother was there with her Christ Child in her arms. Betty suddenly realized that since the time she herself had been a baby in arms her mother had guarded her from all trouble and care; had petted and loved her and now—

Betty slipped down to her knees on the worn hassock and buried her head in her arms. Her slight frame shook with the sobs she had been forcing back since the hour she had left her father's house.

A soft footfall sounded, but Betty scarcely heard, so deep was her repentance.

Tom Hillary stopped at sight of the weeping girl, then caught a surprised breath. He slipped an arm about her. "Betty girl," was all he said, because his own voice was not quite steady. He had drawn her up until she stood beside him.

Her eyes clung to his in wonderment. Something deep and steady was glowing there and Tom Hillary knew his moment had come.

When he spoke the gladness in his voice brought the color to Betty's cheeks.

"I sailed from home the week after you left and have been roaming the streets of Paris looking for either you or Mathilda. Yesterday I gave up and crossed over to London." He looked down into her happy eyes. "When are you going to marry me? Nothing else matters."

Betty looked down at the little ring Tom had put on her finger when they were children, and smiled. After a moment she said shyly, "Just as soon as I have sent a cable home saying 'Betty repents.'"

REWARD OR PUNISH THE GODS

Chinese System That Has Merit, Though Somewhat Humiliating to the Deities.

The Peking Gazette publicly commends and compliments the state gods when the sovereign or regent is satisfied that they have done their full duty toward Chinamen. When some particular god distinguishes himself by an extraordinary service his rank among the gods is raised by imperial command.

Once the God of War was increased in importance by reason of the great armaments which the government undertook to support, and after he had shown his benevolence by allowing the imperial troops to defeat a body of rebels he was metaphorically patted on the back and raised to the same rank as Confucius, who had hitherto held the first place in the state Pantheon.

The following is an interesting announcement that appeared in the Gazette:

"The governor general of the Yellow river requests that a tablet be put up to the River God. During the transmission of relief rice to Honan, whatever difficulties were encountered through shallows, wind and rain, the River God interposed in the most unmistakable manner, so that the transport of grain went on without hindrance."

"Order—Let the proper officer prepare a tablet for the temple of the River God."

"A memorial tablet," announces another issue of the Gazette, "is granted to two temples in honor of the God of the Locusts. On the last appearance of locusts last summer prayers were offered to this deity with marked success."

Brown-Haired Pygmies.

Their frizzly hair is not black, as is that of their neighbors of the coast, the Papuan and Melanesian negroes, but is predominantly brown. On this feature Mr. Williamson lays a good deal of stress, because he finds the same tinge to be characteristic of other pygmy peoples, such as the Andamanese, the Semang of the Malay Peninsula and the Aetas of the Philippines. Anthropologists have hitherto been divided over the question whether these dwarf peoples represent a distinct branch of the negroes, or merely stand for so many sporadic failures on the part of the negro stock to display its full power of physical development. Our author plausibly argues that, if further observations bear out his contention that amongst pygmies generally a dwarf stature goes together with brown hair, we must concede to them the status of a separate type on the strength of this double variation.—London Athenaeum.

POULTRY

SELL ONLY THE FRESH EGGS

Some Farmers Deliberately Impose on Small Merchants by Giving Goods Known to Be Stale.

(By A. G. PHILLIPS, Kansas.)

Selling eggs is one of the handiest ways for the farmer to get a cash or trade return for his produce, during all parts of the year, and if he can increase the efficiency of the machinery which produces and handles these eggs he is putting into his pocket good hard cash.

Almost every housewife who is compelled to buy eggs constantly clamors for some method which she may pursue in order to always get fresh eggs. There is no housewife, who has not some time or other had the great displeasure of handling spoiled or rotten eggs. This almost constant occurrence, with the possible exception of the winter months, practically compels those who lecture and carry on experiment station work to plead with the farmers who produce the eggs to put onto the market better produce.

The egg loss each year is enormous and is beyond all reasonable justification, and the blame lies, at least in part, with the farmer for the following two reasons:

First, some few farmers deliberately take to market eggs which they know are not fresh, because they know that the merchant is compelled to take them or lose their trade. Second, and by far the greatest reason, is because of ignorance on the part of the farmer as to what and how to sell eggs.

When the hens on the farm are producing enough eggs to warrant the farmer's taking them to town, arrangements should be made to handle all of them properly. A convenient and clean place should be provided wherein the hens can lay. The natural tendency of a hen is to go off in the weeds and make her nest. This should not be tolerated and any eggs found in such places should be marked and kept at home.

When the clean, fresh eggs are bathed they should be put in a clean, dry, cool place until marketed. Even though the place is clean and cool, if it is not dry, molds, etc., will commence development and the eggs will soon spoil. If the eggs become damp and they happen to be in contact with any colored material they will immediately become stained. Good egg cases in a cool, dry, clean place, kept up off of the floor, make an excellent receptacle in which to keep eggs previous to marketing.

Before these eggs are set aside for market, they should be gone over by the farmer as he collects them, and all small, stained, dirty, doubtful, incubator and rotten eggs should be removed. Small and dirty eggs, if used immediately, are just as good as large clear ones, but they will not sell well on the market, and if sent in with good eggs will spoil the trade. Therefore, they should be kept and used at home. No eggs should be washed, for the packers claim they will not keep well. All eggs from stolen nests, whose freshness is doubtful, and all incubator eggs should either be thrown away, boiled for the little chicks or used at home. They should never be sent to market. Rotten eggs need not be discussed. Any person who will send one to market deserves all the penalty possible from the pure-food law.

When eggs have been properly gathered, handled and kept previous to taking to market, the question of the number of trips to town should be considered. In hot weather the eggs should be marketed two or three times per week, and oftener if possible. If that number of trips cannot be made, co-operate with a neighbor and have him alternate days in the trips which must be made.

In the fall and spring eggs should be marketed at least once a week. Many buyers have had trouble in November with eggs classed as "held eggs." These are common, because most farmers believe that after frost eggs will not rot so quickly, but nevertheless they do evaporate and the air cells in them show the candor that they are stale.

Therefore, the more often eggs are marketed, the greater are the chances that they will be good.

Make-Up of Broilers.

A broiler should have a good, plump breast, broad back, clean yellow legs and yellow skin, and small comb. Such is the American epicure's ideal but these requirements bar out such breeds as Brahmas, Cochins, Langshans, or any crosses on them, on account of the feathers on their legs. They bar out all white-skinned fowls, and put a damper on all large-comb birds like Leghorns, Minorcas, etc. Such being the case, the Wyandottes have easy sailing; and, besides, being quick growers are more desirable for this purpose.

SAW SINGLY BUT BECAME INTERESTED

The custom of a certain man, with families residing across the seas, of having their bodies and photographs taken and then comparing the photographs of their family members, thereby keeping the "family picture" complete, may cause considerable embarrassment to a learning young school teacher of this city. The story is thusly:

One of the aforementioned foreign-ers visited the Newark Public Library on Thursday morning and saw a picture gallery on the wall. He was a big, burly fellow and was quite pleasant, with the possible exception that he had but one eye. His other eye, however, took in all the surroundings, and finally he picked up a photograph of the teacher in question. She is a particularly beautiful young woman, teaching in the Newark Fifth Street school and was charmingly posed. The photograph, from a point of artistry, is one that the local photographer is especially proud of.

The Austrian pressed at it and wanted his photograph taken into a group with the school teacher as a companion. He declared that this could not be done without the girl's consent, and that the Austrian offered him a bribe for the making of the picture. It was intended as a surprise for the teacher's relatives across the water—just a demonstration of the possibilities awaiting poor Austrians in the land of the free.

When the Austrian learned that the photograph could not be made without the girl's permission, he asked for her name and all negotiations are off, pending his visit to the Newark "school-ma'am." He frequently remarked that "love is blind," commented the photographer yesterday, "but it is seldom that a colored type of the disease is found." International complications may follow.

EDUCATION NOTES.

Open-air schools arranged after German and American models, have been instituted at Barcelona, Spain.

"Education, detection, control," should be the watchwords of the campaign against tuberculosis, according to the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute.

So important has domestic science instruction become in Germany that a special "Domestic Science Dictionary" has been issued for the use of teachers and others interested in education for the home.

The Pilot Chart is published monthly for the North Atlantic, North Pacific, and Indian Oceans, quarterly for the South Atlantic and South Pacific Oceans.

The pressing need for uniformity in State school reports is emphasized anew by the United States Bureau of Education in a recent bulletin on city and country schools. The Bureau urges school officers to adopt as rapidly as possible the State schedule and definitions of terms approved by the Department of Superintendent of the National Education Association.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

SAVES THE HAIR AND MAKES IT LIGHT-FLUFFY-BEAUTIFUL

To insure the possession of good hair two things are necessary—reasonable care and the intelligent use of Newbro's Herpicide.

Hair that receives no attention but the daily combing and an occasional shampoo cannot be pretty. Dandruff forms on the scalp, the hair becomes dead, brittle, uneven and falls out. There is an entire lack of the life, luster and snap which is imparted to the hair by proper care and Newbro's Herpicide.

Herpicide kills the germ that causes dandruff, keeps the scalp clean and free from scale. The hair looks alive, ceases to fall out and has a gloss, beauty and luxuriance. Herpicide stops itching almost instantly.

FARLEY CASE

the attorney. "He turned her out upon the world a flowerless woman, and while he was doing this all the devils in hell danced. He hovered over her for years and kept her continually in his power. When she would wake at night, Zollinger would be perched on the foot of her bed, grinning like a devil over the loss of her chastity."

"Zollinger held her like a cat in its claws," he added.

Mr. Tompkins bitterly assailed Mrs. Pearl Belden, the Cleveland detective, who was locked in an adjoining cell to Miss Farley on a fake charge, and declared she received a partial confession from her. "The attorney called her a 'she devil'."

"The woman purred like a cat and patted this little girl on the shoulder, and when this she devil left the jail she asked this little girl if she wanted to send a note to Quigley by her," said Mr. Tompkins. "She came down here to help commit a murder and bring condemnation and damnation upon the whole Farley household—and all for money," he said.

Mr. Tompkins said the fate of Zollinger represented the wrath of the Lord for his responsibility in ruining Miss Farley. He said the only death that a man like Zollinger could have was one of suicide or murder. He declared the state had failed to establish a motive for Miss Farley's committing the crime.

With tears in his eyes and pleading charity for "this little girl," quoting Scripture to justify her admitted relations with Quigley, Attorney James A. Allen opened his argument to the jury yesterday morning.

"This little girl appears before you perfectly satisfied that a Franklin county jury is the brightest and most refreshing prospect an eye can behold in an hour of trouble," was his first statement to the 12 men.

Mr. Allen scored Prosecutor Turner for making the statement at the beginning of the trial that he would throw the mantle of charity about Miss Farley during the trial, and then asking her concerning her relations with the man to whom she is engaged.

"Mr. Turner's mantle of charity was hardly sufficient to cover an infant," Mr. Allen said.

In an attempt to justify her admitted relations with Quigley, he said: "Mr. Quigley and this little girl knew their own hearts. They loved each other and enjoyed each other's company. Believing that the eyes of God they were married and all that was necessary was the formality of marriage, his passions may have for the time overcame him."

Here Mr. Allen stated that the marriage contract between Quigley and Miss Farley still exists and that they are to be married as soon as she is free.

Further justifying their relations, Mr. Allen quoted from First Corinthians, seventh chapter and thirty-sixth verse, as follows: "But if any man think that he behaveth himself uncomely toward his virgin if she pass the flower of her age and needs so require, let him do what he will: he sinneth not; let them marry."

Mr. Allen said it would have been better if Miss Farley had died in her infancy than to have lived and lived the life she did with Zollinger. "Sweet memories would now be clustered about her grave, and she would be spared these terrible agonies," he said.

Commenting upon her betrayal by Zollinger, he said she believed in him and followed him along their sinful path. She thought she loved him, and his very heartbeats were love to her," he continued.

Zollinger's life, Mr. Allen said, was an exemplification of the Biblical truth, "The wages of sin is death." He said Zollinger's life portrayed on canvas would serve as an admonition for all.

Mr. Allen said Miss Farley had made no confession which the law upholds that she had shot Zollinger, because she was not responsible for her acts at the police station, by reason of the nervous strain under which she rested and her desire to shield Quigley. He also attacked the story of the Cleveland detective.

Mr. Quigley sat at the table with Miss Farley's attorneys, and only a few feet from her side, although he did not appear to notice her.

Assistant Prosecutor John G. Price, who opened the argument for the state, dwelt at length on the attempt of the defense to show that Miss Farley had been dominated by Zollinger and that she feared him.

He said the reverse was absolutely true, as the evidence submitted showed that Miss Farley, by her own admissions, was not afraid of Zollinger, but, on the contrary, he would do anything she asked him. He ridiculed the idea of an accidental shooting, and said that everything was conclusive that she went to the park with Zollinger with the expressed intention of shooting him. Defense attorneys did not attempt to refute most of Mr. Price's deductions.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM WHITTINGTON.
William Whittington, colored, who lived at 346 Eleventh Street, this city, died Friday night at 10 o'clock at the state hospital in Columbus. He leaves a wife and two children. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

G. H. LINDEMOOD.
G. H. Lindemood, aged 56 years, died Thursday evening at his home, 218 North Cedar street, following an illness of more than sixteen weeks of a complication of diseases. Before being seized with his last illness, Mr. Lindemood was employed at the Wehrle company's plant.

Mr. Lindemood was born in Monroe county, this state. He came to Newark seven years ago from Marietta. Besides his wife, he is survived by five children, three sisters and six brothers. He was a member of the Central Church of Christ.

Mr. Lindemood was twice married, his first wife being Miss Nancy McFadden of Monroe county, to whom he was united in 1878, and to this union was born one child, Mrs. S. R. Allen of Woodfield, O. Mrs. Lindemood died in 1879 and the husband again married, his second wife being Miss Mary McMullen of Monroe county. The marriage occurred in 1885 and the widow and four children survive to mourn the death of a kind and loving husband and father. The children are Misses Essie and Bessie and Bert and Ernest.

Funeral services were held at the home, 218 North Cedar street, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. W. E. Ward of the Central Church of Christ officiating. Interment at Cedar Hill cemetery.

MRS. SUSAN HILLARY.
Mrs. Susan Hillary, widow of Cornelius Hillary, died Nov. 22, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bertha L. Williams, 43 Vine street. She is survived by four daughters and four grand children. The funeral will be held Monday at 11:00 o'clock at the Rocky Ford church interment in Sossin cemetery.

THOUGHT HE GAVE THE SIGN

But Old Gentleman Naturally Was Indignant at Mistake of Drug Clerk.

A well-dressed old man walked into a corner drug store the other day, mopped his brow with a handkerchief and took a seat at the soda fountain. The clerk faced him expectantly.

"I am very thirsty," he remarked as he drummed on the counter. "I don't know what I want. Well, I believe I will take a phosphate," he concluded, still drumming on the marble with his fingers. The clerk smiled, picked up a stein and went to the rear of the store. He came back, set it in front of the old man and rang up 15 cents out of the half dollar which was given him. The old man, without looking in the stein, thirstily raised it to his lips and took a long draught. Then he quickly set the stein down, sputtered a moment and then exploded between his coughs.

"What do you mean? I never took a drop of liquor, sir, in my life. But I know it, sir, the rotten stuff, when I smell it. I'll not stand for it, sir. I called for a cherry phosphate. What do you mean, sir, by giving me whisky?" And the old man stopped for breath as he glared at the amazed clerk.

"Well, I—I er—I guess I made a mistake. I thought you wanted it for medicine," stammered the clerk.

"Sir, I am a teetotaler. I wouldn't touch the stuff for love nor money." And the old man marched out indignantly.

"Well, for the love of Mike!" exclaimed the clerk to a man at the counter who had been served a stein in the same way, but who made no kick. "That old duffer came in here and certainly gave me the correct high sign. And he drank nearly half of it, too." The clerk laughed as he looked into the stein.—Kansas City Journal.

Roads Were Not Public.

A century ago all the larger towns in eastern Massachusetts were to be reached substantially only over toll roads, or turnpikes, along which one paid to pass. The roads were built and owned by corporations chartered by the commonwealth, and the fares, or tolls, were taken up every few miles at toll gates, which were usually established on the bridges, so that no one could get by without paying. There were turnpikes to Concord, to Worcester, to Dedham and Quincy, to Lynn and Salem, and to Newburyport. At the first toll gate out of Salem toward Boston, $5,300 was taken in the year 1805, but the day of greatest travel on the road was June 1, 1813, when 120 stages and hundreds of carriages went over the road that their occupants might get a glimpse from hilltops of the fight between the Chesapeake and the Shannon, in which the dying Lawrence uttered his immortal words, "Don't give up the ship."

LODGE NEWS

L. O. T. M.
White Carnation Hive No. 63, L. O. T. M., will hold a special meeting Tuesday evening, Nov. 26, to initiate a class of candidates. All applicants who have not yet received the full degree are requested to be present. The Record Keeper will be at the office of Froelich's Ornithological Dye Works, room 23, Hibbert & Schaub block, Saturday nights from 7 till 9 o'clock.

ROLAND LODGE, K. OF P.
First nomination of officers for the next term will take place at the regular meeting of No. 395 next Tuesday evening. Second nomination and election will occur on Tuesday, Dec. 3.

The principal contest will be for K. of R. to succeed Bro. L. N. Bradley, who has resigned. Several candidates are announced for this position and this will no doubt bring out a large crowd on election night. The Knight rank will be conferred next Tuesday evening. At the last regular meeting all the officers were present and a good attendance of the members was noted. The Esquire rank was conferred on one Page. The new by-laws were distributed. Under the "good of the order" short talks were made by brothers from East Liverpool, Steubenville and Rochester, Ind. After lodge closed cigars were passed by the entertainment committee.

Now, brothers, let's all get together and work for the cause of Pythianism. If in no other way why attend your lodge meetings. Your presence will be an inspiration to the officers and those who do the real work. Let's help Supreme Chancellor Carling in his efforts to reach the million mark in membership. We already have over 700,000, being the third largest purely fraternal organization in the country.

K. OF P.
Newark lodge No. 13, met in regular session Thursday evening. Only routine business was transacted. On Thursday evening, Dec. 5th, the Knight rank will be conferred in full amplified form. County Deputy C. A. Burke of Johnstown, O., will be present at this meeting and will make the annual inspection of the lodge. The entertainment committee has hinted that there will be something doing in their department that evening. W. A. Irvine gave an interesting talk on the up-building of Pythianism. Next Thursday night will be an exceedingly interesting meeting, as plans will be laid for a boom in our membership.

L. O. O. F.
All Chevaliers of Canton Olive No. 90, are reminded of the social meeting to be held on Friday evening, Nov. 29. Word has just been received from Col. Glass that inspection of the First regiment will take place at Newark the same evening we have our social session. He also advises that he has notified all Cantons in the First regiment to be present.

From this you will see that the largest Canton meeting ever held in Newark is arranged for on the evening of Nov. 29. We sincerely hope there will not be a member of our Canton absent. No greater respect could be shown our visitors than to greet them with a full representation of our Canton. This will be a "red letter" day in P. M. circles. A good sized class of candidates will be present. All candidates present will be given the P. M. degree. This degree will be conferred by visiting teams.

After the degree work a banquet will be served. The committee has spared no pains to make this meeting a great success. It is now up to the individual members to be present to make the evening a complete success. Come in full dress.

Mt. Olive Encampment No. 12 met in regular session Thursday evening, Nov. 21, with a fair attendance. The G. R. degree was conferred on a class of three candidates.

All patriarchs should be present on Thursday evening, Dec. 5, this is election night. The R. P. degree will also be conferred on a class of eight candidates. After degree work refreshments will be served. Come one and all and help us show the candidates a good time. It is desired that the encampment degree team meet at Newark lodge next Monday evening.

Olive Branch lodge met in regular session Tuesday evening. The regular business was transacted. Two applications were acted on and elected. There was quite a surprise on the members present when the Grand Secretary, C. H. Lyman, walked into the lodge room unexpected. Bro. Lyman gave a good talk on Odd Fellowship and the good work the various lodges were doing. Brothers, next Tuesday evening will be second nomination night; also the initiatory degree will be conferred on two candidates. It is hoped there will be a good turnout so this degree can be conferred in proper shape. All Past Grandes, take notice, Dec. 3 will be election night for grand and subordinate officers.

OCTAGON TENT, K. O. T. M.
Octagon Tent, K. O. T. M., is still getting after the new members to beat the band. Two applicants were elected to membership Wednesday evening, Dec. 4th. Deputy Conner is with us now and promises us a surprise if all level a hand. He will be at the Record Keeper's office Saturday evening and would like to meet all the boys that can possibly come in to see him. Now get busy and get the names and address of your friends that are eligible and Conner will do the rest. Octagon tent is getting in the front ranks of the tents of Ohio and you can all help boost. The mark set is 50 new members by January 1st. The next review on Wednesday evening, Dec. 4, is election night and a good representation is desired.

AUTO SIGNALS

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 23.—A new city ordinance regulating the use of automobile signals goes into effect today. This is the result of efforts to reduce the accident record and at the same time subdue the objectionable noise element. The new measure demands the use of an adequate warning signal and defines such as one producing an abrupt note, sufficiently loud to be heard under all traffic conditions, but restricts its use to times when it is actually necessary as a warning of danger.

'TWA'S JUSTIFIABLE, TOO.
New York, Nov. 23.—"Dam" fell from the lips of Judge Cox in the United States court of appeals, as he scrutinized the court calendar. The startled clerk took the paper the judge handed to him.

Then the clerk, too, said "Dam." But he got no further. With the air of a man who gives up guessing, he called: "No. 17." The case up for trial was:

"Dampstiesacktiesselspabet versus The United Fruit Company."

It is now known as the case of "The Alphabet vs. United Fruit."

Legal Notice in Divorce.

Probate Court of Licking County, Ohio. Leroy Garrison, Plaintiff, Barbara Ellen Garrison, Defendant.

The defendant, Barbara Ellen Garrison, is hereby notified that on the 16th day of November, 1912, the plaintiff, "Leroy Garrison," filed his petition for divorce against her in the Probate Court of Licking County, Ohio, in which he charges her with gross neglect of duty, adultery, etc., and praying to be divorced from the said defendant.

The said defendant is required to plead to said action within six weeks and three days from the 16th day of November, 1912, after which said action will stand for trial.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist

FOOD FOR 3-YEAR-OLD CHILD.

A reader asks whether a mother did wisely in requiring a child of three who was thriving well on milk to add solid foods, including meat. Almost any child would live better indefinitely on milk than on a mixed diet although cereals and milk make good diet for the child. Sugar fruits, dates, figs and raisins may also be allowed, but no child should be required to eat the variety of foods found on the table of the average family. A normal child will prefer to make a meal of one or two articles of food and will refuse many that are altogether unnecessary for either adult or young.

JADDISON IS BADLY BURNED

William Jaddison, a farmer residing east of the city, was badly burned while preparing to come to Newark in his automobile Saturday morning and is now under the care of a local physician. Jaddison's face and hands were attacked by flames from a pile of gasoline-laden waste with which he had been cleaning the machine, and which had been ignited when Jaddison carelessly tossed away a match after lighting his cigar. The victim of the accident is well known in this city, having moved to his farm about eight months ago. His condition is not said to be critical, although it was stated this morning that a skin-grafting operation might be resorted to if the burns do not show substantial improvement by Monday.

It's hard work for the diffident fellow to propose but the girl will generally be assister to him.

DEATH CHAIR SAVES JOB

Sandusky, O., Nov. 23.—With the electrocution of Dominick Salvaggio, Kellers island murderer, the resignation of Herman Reuter as sheriff of Erie county, in the hands of Sandusky newspaper men since early last spring, becomes ineffective. Reuter authorized the announcement of his retirement from office if the board of pardons or the governor commuted the sentence of Salvaggio or of Rocco Klawewich, executed last Friday. The sheriff said he was convinced beyond a doubt that Salvaggio and Klawewich were guilty and that they deserved death as punishment and that if the law permitted them to escape he did not care to be considered an arm thereof any longer.

Dr. Hartman Describes the Phrase, Systemic Catarrh

I received a letter from a good housewife of this state. She had been reading my last article on chronic catarrh. Her letter reads in part: "Dear Doctor Hartman:—I was very much interested in your article on catarrh. I see by your explanation that catarrh is liable to affect any organ of the body, that it can assume the symptoms of a great many different kinds of disease. There was one form of catarrh, however, that you did not mention. I would like your opinion on it. I have heard it somewhere that there is a disease known as systemic catarrh. What do you know about it, and what would you advise?"

My dear Madam:—I think I was the originator of the term systemic catarrh. At least I had never seen it in print until I began to use it. Systemic catarrh describes a condition of the system closely resembling auto intoxication, or self poisoning. The catarrhal organs happen to be so located that the discharge of mucus cannot occur freely. It may be the stomach, or kidneys, or pelvic organs. Now if this vitiated, poisonous mucus cannot escape freely it will be absorbed by the blood vessels and carried into all parts of the system. It is Nature's attempt to get it out of the system through the kidneys. But in the effort to rid the organ of the poisonous mucus Nature is unintentionally poisoning the whole system. This is what I call systemic catarrh. We hear often today the term auto intoxication, which refers to a condition of the bowels. The bowels being clogged up, they ferment and become poisoned. The system attempts to rectify the trouble by absorbing the poison and carrying it out through the kidneys. The result is sickness, called auto intoxication. It is exactly this kind of thing that happens in systemic catarrh. The catarrhal secretions that do not escape by the internal organs are absorbed by the blood vessels through the system, and the result is systemic catarrh. The remedy I believe to be Peruna. I believe there is no remedy in the world that has relieved so many people as Peruna. The disease is not always known as systemic catarrh. Sometimes it is called dyspepsia, sometimes nervous prostration. Sometimes it assumes the form of anemia, and then again chronic malaria, also walking typhoid fever. All these conditions are fully described by the term systemic catarrh. It is especially prevalent during the typhoid season, September and October. I would not consider any other remedy than Peruna in such cases as these. Peruna is absolutely a perfect remedy for systemic catarrh. All letters of inquiry answered promptly.

SPECIAL NOTICE—Many persons inquire for the old-time Peruna. They want the Peruna that their Fathers and Mothers used to take. The old Peruna is now called Ka-tar-ro. If your dealer does not keep it for sale write the Ka-tar-ro Company, Columbus, Ohio, and they will tell you all about it.

UTICA GIRL WAS LURED FROM HOME

By Former Cleveland Veterinarian. is Charge Made by 15-Year-Old Telephone Operator.

Several witnesses appeared Friday before the Cuyahoga county grand jury in its investigation of the charges made against Dr. Merrill Edwards, a Cleveland veterinarian, who has been practicing at Utica, O., and who is now confined in the Licking county jail on the charge of having contributed to the delinquency of Amy Pierce, a 15-year-old telephone operator, whose home is in Utica. The charge against Edwards is that he lured the Pierce girl to Cleveland early in November for immoral purposes. Edwards was arrested in Utica on Nov. 4 and was brought to this city and lodged in the county jail for safekeeping because of threats of mob violence that had been made in Utica. Miss Pierce informed the Cuyahoga county grand jurors that she was enticed to Cleveland by Dr. Edwards under a promise of marriage and that he abandoned her in a shelter house in the public square in Cleveland. The other witnesses who testified in Cleveland on Friday were Marshal W. A. Hobbs, Mrs. Jane Pierce, the aged mother of the girl, and Miss Louise Belt, chief operator in the Utica telephone exchange, who testified to alleged attempts by Dr. Edwards to lure Miss Pierce away from her home. The case against Edwards in the local juvenile court, which is based on an affidavit filed by Marshal W. A. Hobbs of Utica, charging him with contributing to the delinquency of the Pierce girl, was set for hearing on Monday last, but was continued at the request of the defense until Monday, Nov. 25, at which time the case will be tried by Judge Robbins Hunter. Dr. Edwards, the accused man, has retained Attorney L. C. Russell to defend him in the local court.

If in employ you are in danger of losing your position. It may be greatly to your advantage, though, and with your natural determination should not cause you much sorrow. Waste not one moment in regret or in getting even with enemies, as you will only entangle yourself more. Those born today will be brilliant and capable, but will naturally lack the patience necessary to success. They will learn much from books and will have the faculty of applying this knowledge to their own lives.

EXPECT BIG MEETING OF MEN SUNDAY

The second meeting of the Christian Men's Union is to be held in the First Presbyterian church at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and promises to attract two or three hundred men. The meeting at the First Methodist church last Sunday, addressed by Dr. Charles L. Seasholes aroused substantial interest in the organization, and it is not believed that this will wane. Tomorrow's meeting will be in the nature of an "experience meeting," and an opportunity will be given to laymen to express their personal views on religious matters, particularly pertinent to the welfare of the city. A large men's chorus will be on hand and the "little red books," made familiar at the Lyon meetings, will be in use. Pastors of various churches of the city are requested to announce this meeting from their pulpits tomorrow.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE. The Ministerial Association of the city has arranged for union Thanksgiving service to be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church Thanksgiving morning, at 10 o'clock. Rev. Dr. J. Morrison Thomas will preach the sermon. The ministers of the city are requested to emphasize the announcement of this service from their pulpits tomorrow.

The Lord helps him who helps himself, but don't let that prevent you from helping others.

Tonsiline Prevents Diphtheria

Diphtheria is the most dreaded disease of childhood, because it is so often fatal. It is invariably preceded by Sore Throat—nature's danger signal. At the appearance of Sore Throat the first thought should be its instant cure. Don't regard it lightly—don't think it may be gone tomorrow. An hour's delay may bring fatal results. What good doctor in his practice now advises delay or thinks lightly of any Sore Throat, especially in children? Modern medicine wisely endeavors to quickly control and cure the simpler forms of disease—it's so much easier and so much safer than waiting for the graver diseases to follow. It is right here and in this way that TONSILINE has its greatest value. Tonsiline will positively cure the Sore Throat and thereby prevent the dread disease—Diphtheria. Tonsiline is the one remedy, sold largely throughout the United States, exclusively for the cure of Sore Throats. Its field is limited but it does its whole duty every time. We know of no case where it has failed during its years of use in thousands of homes. Buy a bottle today and have it ready for instant use. Tonsiline is the stitch in time. 25c and 50c at all druggists. The Tonsiline Co. Canton, Ohio.

SIXTY FIVE STARTED IN THIS STATE

Advices were received here this morning that the total number of Y. W. C. A. organizations in Ohio now registered with state headquarters is sixty-five, but "Newark is expected to make the sixty-sixth," added the state organization officials. There reports of the campaign committee indicate such a possibility at least.

There are thirty-two times as many kinds of opportunities offered to boys as to girls. What factor in your community can render expert service to all types of girls and meet most fully and quickly this challenge of thirty-two-times-as-many? The most democratic woman's organization in the world today is the Young Women's Christian Association. It can serve your community with the combined purposes, of, say, the social club, the school, the symposium, the church—supplementing them all where they must necessarily leave off.

Why most democratic? Because a social club working alone reaches only limited groups of women—make for distinctions. The church, working alone, cannot concentrate on young women, looks to the Young Women's Christian Association as one of its departments of service. The school, working within fixed hours and according to prescribed schedule, is necessarily inflexible. The gymnasium, operating alone, cannot make its girls see that physical health is the greatest thing in the moral strength of our nation, inseparable from mental, social and spiritual life.

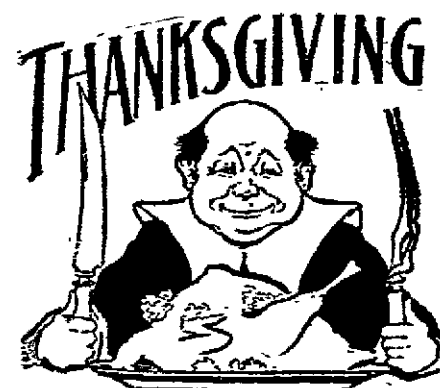

GERMAN AMERICAN ALLIANCE TO GIVE BALL TUESDAY EVE.

The local chapter of the German-American Alliance will give a grand ball next Tuesday evening in Assembly Hall, this being the first of a series of entertainments this winter to create a fund to be used in the entertainment of the delegates to the state meeting of this organization, to be held here next August. Marsh's Orchestra will provide the music for the occasion. An admission fee of 50 cents will be charged at the door.

A Great Building Falls When its foundation is undermined, and if the foundation of health—good digestion—is attacked, quick collapse follows. On the first signs of indigestion, Dr. King's New Life Pills should be taken to tone the stomach, and regulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Pleasant, easy, safe and only 25 cents at F. D. Hall's.

Lots of people waive their rights but pugilists also waive their lefts.

If the Thanksgiving Dinner Is Well Dressed the Diner Ought to Be

A man may be just as thankful in his old clothes as in his new ones, but he doesn't look it.

How about one of our handsome $10, $15 or $20 Suits or Overcoats for Thanksgiving.

Perhaps it's a new Hat, Tie, Shirt, Gloves or something else in Haberdashery you're wanting.

The best of everything in Men's wear is here, and Thanksgiving is a splendid time to appear in something new.
